Specialization Track in International Regional Geography

This specialization area emphasizes human interactions and cultures at the regional and global scales, as well as variations in cultural, economic and physical factors that shape the international arena. Students may construct an individual program with the International Regional Geography area advisor, George Hepner.

The specialization area requires at least five courses (15 credit hours) as elective credits to complete the track within the geography major. Selection of courses should be at least three courses in regional geography and the remaining hours in systematic or special topics.

Regional Geography Courses

1300 World Regional Geography (3)

3630 Geography of Europe (3)

3640 Geography of China and Asia (3)

3650 Geography of the Middle East (3)

3670 Geography of Latin America (3)

Systematic International Courses

3320/5320 Geography of Terrorism and Homeland Security (3)

3205/5205 Regional and Global Climates (3)

3210/5210 Global Climate Change (3) Recommended Prerequisite: GEOG 1000.

3420 Political Geography (3)

3440/5440 Global Economic Geography (3)

Directed Study

3963/5963 Special Topics (1 to 5) Directed study of an international region and/or issue generally offered on a one-time basis depending on faculty/instructor availability and interests. Different topics and titles based on agreement between instructor and student.

Allied Course

SBS 2000 Patterns of Global Terrorism: Law, Policy and Supranational Institutions (3)